Mission:
JAFCO’s mission is to care for abused and neglected children and those with disabilities in the Jewish community and to work in partnership with families and the entire community.

Vision:
We believe that the care of children in our community is our responsibility, one we accept with joy, pride and love. Our vision is to provide a privately funded accredited model child welfare program which can be replicated in other communities around the country including a continuum of high quality family preservation, foster care, adoption, emergency shelter, group home, independent living, and mentoring services to at-risk children and families in the community and to provide family enrichment, support and respite care for families raising children with developmental disabilities. The immediate vision would focus on South Florida Jewish community (incorporating the counties of Miami-Dade, Broward and Palm Beach). The long-range vision is to expand our services to other Jewish communities around the country beginning in the Northeast. While JAFCO was created to meet an unmet need in the Jewish community, as a Jewish community it is our privilege and our responsibility to serve any child or family in need.

Core Values:

- Compassion
- Respect
- Community
- Love and Kindness
- Stability

Philosophy and Beliefs:

- We believe that communities will respond to the responsibility of identifying and caring for abused and neglected children and those with disabilities when individuals are appropriately educated as to presence of local children needing their protection and families needing their support, and when an organizational framework is established that provides concerned people with opportunities to participate in meeting the needs of such children and the in accordance with national best practices.
- We believe that children served by JAFCO should be treated no differently than the way that nurturing parents would act toward their biological children- offering them the best life has to offer in all aspects of their social, emotional, physical, educational, cultural and spiritual development.
- We believe that every effort should be made to maintain a child safely within their family, and that out of home placement should be avoided if at all possible.
- We believe that nothing is more tragic than a family torn apart and that when removal of a child from his family is unavoidable, providing that child with a familiar cultural and religious environment will help maintain and strengthen that child’s identity as they heal from the trauma of abuse and neglect.
- We believe that caring for children should not be viewed as charity, but should be viewed as a parent caring for a child -- with joy, pride, love and support.

Scope:

- JAFCO offers a comprehensive continuum of services annually to over 1100 children ages birth to 24 in the South Florida community each year in one or more of the following programs: Family Preservation, Foster Care, Adoption, Mentoring, Emergency Shelter, Group Home and Independent Living.
- JAFCO cares for all children regardless of religion, race, gender or ethnicity.
- Children can be referred to all of JAFCO’s programs through the state child welfare system and judiciary or privately by family members, community professionals and community members at-large.
The JAFCO Children’s Ability Center opened in 2014 and offers family enrichment, resources, therapeutic support and respite care to families raising a child with a developmental disability. Services are offered to children birth through 22 in South Florida. Families from around the country are also welcome to use our respite services.

As part of the vision to disseminate the JAFCO model to other communities around the country, an expansion effort was established in 2007 to organize the three communities in the NE including Philadelphia, South Jersey and Long Island to raise funds and awareness about the JAFCO model. In 2014, a JAFCO program office was opened in Philadelphia to bring the JAFCO Model to these Northeast Communities.

History:

In 1992, JAFCO was incorporated as a non-profit agency in the State of Florida and licensed the following year by the Florida Department of Children and Families as a child placing and adoption agency.

Our Founding Board Chair is still involved in the organization and our founding CEO and COO are still in their positions 25 years later.

To provide private funding for needed services, JAFCO created a network of over a dozen volunteer driven “chapters” in various communities around South Florida with the goal of raising awareness and funds for the agency.

Initial JAFCO programs included foster care, adoption, family preservation and mentoring with an annual budget of $50k.

During its first ten years of operations, JAFCO received referrals on over 1,000 children including 200 children who needed placement and services that were not then available through JAFCO. Upon careful analysis of our data, it was determined that these underserved children fell into three main categories: (1) children in need of emergency shelter often in the middle of the night, (2) adolescents and children who more difficult to place in foster homes due to their age and behaviors, and (3) sibling groups of three, four or more children for whom we could not find a suitable foster or adoptive home in which they could remain together. To meet the needs of these underserved children, the JAFCO Board created the vision of a residential Children’s Village.

In 1998, JAFCO received a $1m seed grant from the State Legislature through the Department of Children and Families to begin the planning and construction of the JAFCO Children’s Village.

JAFCO has built a solid and unique reputation in our community for providing quality services, for our ability to raise private funds, create government partnerships and for our ability to leverage a valuable grass roots movement that supports our mission with over $100k per year in kind giving, thousands of volunteers and over 100,000 donors in our database.

In 2002, JAFCO received a $350,000 annual contract from the Children’s Services Council of Broward County to provide in home therapeutic services to families with the empirically based MST (Multi-Systemic Therapy) Model. To date this program has received national awards and continues to this date.

In 2003, JAFCO opened the JAFCO Children’s Village, a 5.6-acre campus which added six group homes and an emergency shelter to the services already provided.

In 2004, JAFCO received a federal grant from the Department of Elder Affairs to support grandparents raising their grandchildren with the creation of Senior Caregiver Program offering case management, in home support services, support groups, and funding for community based respite care. That program continues to this day.

In 2004, JAFCO was approved as a Medicaid Provider by the State of Florida.

In 2006, in response to the alarming increase in the numbers of children diagnosed with developmental disabilities, the JAFCO Board of Trustees expanded our mission to include children with developmental disabilities and their families by approving the creation of an innovative state-of-the-art Children’s Ability Center to provide family enrichment, resources, therapeutic support and extended respite care all under one roof.

In 2006, JAFCO received a second seed grant from the Florida Legislature of $975,000 for the construction of the Children’s Ability Center through the State of Florida Agency for Persons with Disabilities. The land for the Center was donated to JAFCO by the Daniel D. Cantor Senior Center and the Jewish Federation of Broward.

In 2007, JAFCO began raising funds and awareness about the issue of child abuse within the Northeast community in Philadelphia, NJ and Long Island with one staff member working out of a home-based office with the assistance of three volunteer chapters in PA, NJ and NY.

In 2008, JAFCO was accredited by CARF (the Council of Residential Facilities), an international accrediting body. JAFCO has maintained that accreditation status without interruption since that time.

In 2014, JAFCO opened its first office in Philadelphia and hired our first clinical social worker.

In 2014 JAFCO opened the Children’s Ability Center.

In 2015, JAFCO became a licensed foster care and adoption agency in the State of Pennsylvania.

In 2017/18, JAFCO celebrated its 25th Anniversary.
The JAFCO Model:
The success of the JAFCO Model is attributable to the combination of four factors:

1) an improved sense of security, belonging, continuity and permanency that comes when children and families feel they are being served by an agency that serves as “extended family” within their own community;
2) the presence of an experienced professional organization that is capable of providing the highest quality care for abused, neglected and abandoned children using compassionate evidence-based treatment modalities;
3) an educated and caring community that takes ownership of the problem and provides a solution that includes financial and volunteer support;
4) a public-private partnership which integrates and combines diversified governmental and community support and funding.

The ability of a community to act as an extended family to help disadvantaged children in need of safety is crucial to the success of the JAFCO mission – it is what makes us unique and it is the first component of the JAFCO model. Caring for children whose lives include abuse, neglect, abandonment or a developmental disability is a community responsibility. The JAFCO model was first created by the Jewish community, but this model can be applied to any community whether by faith, geography or another demographic. JAFCO feels that the most effective method for assisting children and families in need should be at the community grassroots level. Communities that serve their populations have a critical advantage in that they can act as extended families to the children being served. The feeling of being part of an extended family is vitally important to the health and well-being of the children and families being served. When JAFCO is viewed as an extended family it provides children with a sense of security, belonging, continuity and permanence that augments the family structure. This is particularly true for children who are the most disadvantaged, those who have been abused, neglected, abandoned or are disabled. Working together as a community and as an extended family is a core value found in all JAFCO programs and services and endorsed by our stakeholders.

The second step of the JAFCO Model is to provide empowerment and leadership to the community to raise the bar in terms of quality of evidence-based and compassionate services provided to the most disadvantaged children in our nation. The selection and training of a highly dedicated and talented professional staff working in partnership with and an equally passionate, influential and generous Board of Trustees to provide governance, fiduciary oversight and funding are the key elements of this next step.

In the third step of the JAFCO model the community is then educated about the needs of the most disadvantaged children in our community. When people are educated that such needs are currently present in their own communities, they almost immediately take ownership of this problem by viewing such children as “their children” and “their responsibility” to reach out and assist. The community is initially organized with the use of community town hall meetings, presentations to both faith-based and civic groups, special events, and private parlor meetings. As a result of these efforts, referrals for services are made from community members who begin to take on the role of watching out for the safety of children in their community. Community volunteer groups or “chapters” are created by professional staff, with the goal of raising awareness about the JAFCO mission and also to provide funding.

The final step is for JAFCO to create a private-public partnership which includes state licensing and certification and the formation of relationships with the judiciary, other social services agencies and professionals and key political leaders who care deeply about the needs of children. Limited government funding is combined with extensive community charitable giving and the use of professional and lay volunteers to provide a level of support that far exceeds what other social service programs can provide. Diversification of private funding sources is key and includes special events, private donations, exclusive giving circles, special purpose funds, private foundation grants, endowments and planned giving.
